Highway Funds;

Local auto owners already overburdened with gasoline taxes had a shock Wednesday when they read our AP Washington dispatch reporting that the Senate had passed and sent to the House a bill to allow the states to spend part of their federal highway allotments on rail transit systems.

While the Highway Trust Fund wasn't specifically mentioned, federalists have been openly advocating taking some of the money pledged for interstate highway construction and spending it on commuter rail lines in the big cities.

I don't have the details of the bill, but any measure that takes revenue raised by automobile and fuel taxes for highway purposes and diverts it to metropolitan rail lines is a vicious betrayal of the auto taxpayer.

If you intend to make your outrage heard in Washington this would be a good time to write anyone you know in the Congress, for this evil bill is now headed for the House.

Editor Louis Graves is having his share of mailing problems with the semi-weekly Nashville News (may the plague stay away from The Star's door; for a time we "had it" in a big way). This is what Louis wrote in his Facts and Fancies column dated Sept. 15:

PATIENCE, subscribers in the New Hope and Daisy area, we are seeking ways and means of speeding up delivery of your News. Right now this mailing goes to Hope to Wake Village, Texas, back up to Hot Springs then back down to you, which sometimes takes 2 1/2 days, and that's unsatisfactory.

Postal folks are allowing us to take our Murfreesboro bundle directly to the post office there, which solves that problem.

Anybody drive daily to New Hope and Daisy who would help?

The plot to kill Israelis with booby-trapped mail parcels spread to Africa today after intensive police searches turned up bombs in North America

Nixon's car
second best in collision

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's new five-ton armor-plated limousine has come out second best in a collision with a 10-speed bicycle. But the bike rider got a ticket.

President Nixon was not in his car at the time.

After the collision Wednesday, bicycle owner Orville Jackson, 32, of Washington reported no damage, while police said Nixon's Lincoln Continental limousine was damaged on the left rear fender and doors.

Police put total damage at over $100. Cost of the car has been estimated at $500,000.

Jackson, a student at Washington Technical Institute, was shaken up and examined at a hospital, but apparently was not seriously hurt.

The mishap occurred as both car and bicycle were turning into a service station. Police later went to the hospital to give Jackson a ticket for failure to keep in his proper lane of traffic, but Jackson says he's going to fight it in court.

Jackson said he was stunned by the impact, but quickly realized the car was occupied by Secret Service agents.

"You know," he said, "that car had four radios, and these guys had guns sticking out of their coats."

and across Europe.

Israeli officials also reported they are getting tough with persons trying to inflict their own personal vengeance on Arab terrorists.

The Israeli foreign ministry said three of the envelopes containing the bombs were found today addressed to embassy officials in Kinshasa, the capital of Zaire.

They were discovered in the embassy's postal delivery box before any went off. A spokesman said the bombs were similar to those found earlier this week in Paris, London, Brussels, Geneva, Vienna, Tel Aviv, Montreal and New York. One of them killed a diplomat in London, but the others were found before they were detonated.

Meanwhile, Israeli police cracked down to prevent Jewish vengeance attacks in Europe. "We are not planning any illegal operations," one official said.

Israel's state radio reported that police were holding former Israeli underground fighter on suspicion of trying to ship arms to Europe for attacks on Arab terrorists or Arab interests.

The radio identified him as Amihai Paglin, once operations commander of the Irgun terrorist movement. The Irgun fought against the British army before Israel won independence.

Two days ago the militant Jewish Defense League announced that one of its members also was arrested for trying to smuggle weapons abroad for counter-terrorist operations following the Munich Olympic murders.

As the letter bomb scare mounted in Israel, police said 14 of the explosive-laden envelopes had been found in the country. Like all of the others, they were mailed from Amsterdam, officials said.

Ami Shanchori, an agricultural attache in the Israeli embassy in London was killed by one of the bombs Tuesday.

Police reported some of the letter-bombs contained leaflets of the Black September Palestinian guerrilla group, which claimed credit for killing 11 members of the Israeli Olympic squad in Munich Sept. 5.

Police in various cities said the bombs were all made from explosive strips that are thinner than a ball point pen.

Yigal Allon, Israel's deputy premier, said in Jerusalem a "systematic" new phase in the antiguerrilla struggle is now in effect. No Arab country, Allon added, "will enjoy immunity as far as our counterterrorist actions are concerned."

On the diplomatic front, Foreign Minister Abba Eban of Israel said upon leaving London for the United Nations in New York that, "It is incumbent upon all governments to take action against terrorists in coordination with the government of Israel."

VC proposals to end war
rejected at conference

PARIS (AP) — The United States today again rejected Viet Cong proposals to end the war in South Vietnam, saying they would lead instead to "prolonged warfare and Communist dictatorship by the North."

U.S. Ambassador William J. Porter told the 160th session of the Paris peace talks that the more the U.S. analyzes Communist statements "the more illogical, impractical and self-contradictory they appear."

In an analysis of the Viet Cong's Sept. 11 declaration on its seven-point peace plan, Porter noted that the United States was asked to cease all military activity, pull out and dismantle bases.

"The statement is completely mute, however," he said, "about the measures your side would undertake."

As for the Viet Cong plan for a tripartite coalition regime, Porter said it would give the Viet Cong element "decisive preponderance of authority even though its 'representativity has never been tested.'"

He told the Communist side: "A quarter-century of ruthless Communist fratricide has made Vietnamese political leaders and impartial foreign observers pardonably skeptical about professions of coexistence."

Porter declared: "Your silence about your commitments in the military and political spheres is paralleled by your silence about the North Vietnamese army. That army, the world knows, is a instrument of aggression not only in South Vietnam but in the other countries of Indochina as well."

He again called for an internationally supervised cease-fire throughout Indochina.

South Vietnam said earlier today that the war may be "prolonged indefinitely" if the Communists do not give up their present demands.

Man shot at Ozan, woman being held

Leonard Taylor, 27, of Ozan is in a Texarkana hospital in an undetermined condition with a bullet wound in the chest following a shooting at Ozan about 7:30 p.m. Wednesday.

Being held in the Hempstead County jail pending a further investigation is Earsie Lee Trotter, 37, also of Ozan.

The shooting occurred at the residence of Mrs. Bradley of Ozan, according to Sheriff Henry Sinyard. Following the shooting Taylor was moved to a Nashville hospital and later transferred to Texarkana.

A .22 cal. pistol was recovered, Sinyard said.

Prisoners in Uganda thrown into 'black hole'

LONDON (AP) — Americans and Europeans rounded up by Ugandan troops and secret service agents were flung into a "black hole of Calcutta" jail cell with African prostitutes, thieves, thugs and two lunatics.

That was the tale of horror told today by seven British newsmen released by the Ugandans Wednesday after they were held several days in Kampala's central police headquarters as "British spies."

The British newsmen withheld their reports until they knew the other newsmen held by the Ugandans were freed. That group, including Associated Press correspondent Andrew Torchia, was released late Wednesday night and flown out to Manchester on a British airliner.

Daily Mail reporter Leslie Watkins, freed Tuesday night, was arrested in the Grand Hotel by seven Ugandan agents and marched to prison with a submachine gun jabbed in his back.

He was stripped and searched and found himself branded a spy because interrogators found a note from his five-year-old son in his case. It read: "Good luck daddy. Come back safe and soon. Love. Simon."

Watkins said his interrogator screamed at him: "This person knows you are on a dangerous mission."

Watkins was flung into the "foul-smelling dungeons of the central police station"—which the Ugandan Africans christened "King Georgey Hotel" during British colonial days.

After more interrogations by screaming Ugandans, Watkins and other newsmen were thrown into a barracks room measuring 40 feet by 20 feet with about 50 other foreigners, including a pregnant English woman and two small boys aged four and two.

The foreigners still held by the Ugandans "are in a desperate situation," Watkins said. "They are in a cell complex in which 70 people exist with only four toilets. The smell is choking."

One man, he said, cracked under the strain and stumbled terrified around the crowded cell mumbling "they are going to shoot us". But he said most of the foreigners, even children and women forced to watch torturers batter an African with clubs for an hour, kept their heads.

Don Wise, roving correspondent for the Daily Mirror, said: "Everyone lived with the fear of being thrown to the crocodiles."

Pay cut is on tap
for Shriver

CHICAGO (AP) — Sargent Shriver will take a 40-per-cent pay cut if he is elected vice president. His personal balance sheet shows an income of $108,600 last year and net assets of $100,000 for himself and $707,000 for his wife.

As he disclosed his family finances for the first time, the candidate acknowledged that the McGovern-Shriver campaign is in "serious—I wouldn't say acute—financial trouble."

But he hasn't gone to the Kennedy family for contributions, Shriver said in an interview Wednesday night.

"That's probably the last place that I would turn to ask for money. I have no intention of doing it," Shriver said. "I would have hope if they are interested in the success of the campaign they would make a contribution."

The salary of the vice president is $82,400 a year plus $10,000 for expenses, all taxable.

Shriver's balance sheet shows that he earned $105,800 last year from his partnership in a Washington law firm and another $2,800 from speaking fees.

Shriver's wife, Eunice, is the oldest daughter of the late Joseph P. Kennedy, one of America's wealthiest men.

SS increase is OKd, deductions
will go higher

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Finance Committee has approved a $6-billion package of Social Security increases and higher payroll deductions to finance them. Today the panel tries to wrap up work on the joint Social Security-welfare-reform bill.

The Social Security boosts were approved Wednesday as the committee neared the end of its deliberations on the House-passed legislation.

Under the Social Security tax hike approved by the committee, a person making $10,800 next year would pay $648, compared with $468 this year. The employer pays a matching amount.

The measure also contains far-reaching provisions affecting welfare families with dependent children; the aged, blind and disabled on the welfare rolls; and the two big government health programs—Medicare and Medicaid.

Finance has voted to junk President Nixon's family-assistance plan for welfare reform and substitute its own workfare version with much stronger work requirements for welfare recipients.

The new Social Security benefits approved would include $3.5 billion in cash payments and $2.4 billion in Medicare.

The committee turned down the recommendation of the Nixon administration that some of the Social Security provisions be removed from the bill as too costly.

Ford to recall
72 cars

DEARBORN, Mich. (AP) — Ford Motor Co. said today it is recalling 900,000 1972 models so it can search for 200 which could develop a steering gear malfunction.

Dealers also will check the steering mechanism on 1973 models they have on hand, the company said.

Owners of the 900,000 Torinos, Montegos, Fords, Mercurys Thunderbirds, Lincoln Continentals, Mark IVs, Rancheros and light trucks with power steering built after March 1, 1972, are being notified by registered mail to take their cars to dealers for inspection.

River bill not sought

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The state Stream Preservation Committee will not try again next year to get a bill approved by the legislature for creation of a statewide system of scenic rivers, according to Dr. Joe Nix of Arkadelphia.

Nix, who stepped down as chairman of the committee at Wednesday's meeting, said after a meeting with Gov. Dale Bumpers Monday, that the governor said he preferred "we not work toward a stream bill as such right now."

Bumpers has tentative plans to ask for a $5 million to $10 million appropriation, which probably would include federal funds, from the state's revenue surplus to begin a stream bank easement acquisition program, Nix said.

Nix said the governor wanted the committee to continue studying streams in Arkansas, evaluating them and offering recommendations to him as to which streams should be saved and which easements needed to be acquired.

Nix said the state could approach landowners along streams and propose that he sell scenic easements on his property and agree to limit his activity within the easement areas. If the property owner says no, "then that's that," Nix said.

Bumpers made the statement, and "we agree," that land condemnation should not be used to acquire the easements.

"If the state is willing to pay somebody not to do something on his land then I see the beginnings of a (scenic rivers) system," Nix said.

Nix said he personally agreed with Bumpers' plan for the committee, and he said the committee "generally agreed" to go along with the governor, but he said he still wanted work on a stream bill to continue so it would be ready if it is needed.

Astronauts: Zipping lips on charges

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Members of the nation's astronaut corps have flatly refused to be interviewed on charges they have been selling their autographs for personal profit.

In a reply to interview requests, Alan B. Shepard, chief of the astronaut office and possibly one of those involved in signature selling, said the spacemen would not talk and were shielded from inquiry because the profiteering was "an internal NASA personnel matter."

The reply, relayed by a space agency spokesman, stated, "Astronauts decline to grant interviews on their involvement or non-involvement in autographing philatelic materials for personal gain."

"This is consistent with the NASA policy that states that since there were no substantive violations this is considered an internal NASA personnel matter and the names of those involved will not be released," the statement concludes.

The statement effectively blocks inquiry through official channels at the Manned Spacecraft Center.

Questions regarding the signatures are not answered because there were "no substantive violations," while questions on other areas of astronaut profiteering are not answered because, says the space agency, the Justice Department is investigating possible substantive violations.

The space agency admitted last week that members of the astronaut corps had been selling their signatures for about $5 each. Officials said the spacemen had been signing the signatures during their off-duty hours for a German dealer, who, in turn, was selling them for about $16.50. Some of the astronauts reportedly donated the proceeds to charity.

The gag on the astronauts regarding the signatures is a continuation of a policy the space agency started just after it became known the Apollo 15 crew had smuggled stamp covers to the moon with the intention of making a personal profit.

Since that time, two of the Apollo 15 astronauts still with the space agency have refused to grant interviews on the subject. Questions from newsmen posed to officials at the Manned Spacecraft Center have gone unanswered. Reporters are referred to the Washington headquarters of the agency.

In a release on its own investigation of the stamps and signatures, the space agency has also admitted that the Apollo 15 commander, David Scott, carried two unauthorized watches into space.

The watches, according to one source, were manufactured by Bulova and were similar to the Omega watches astronauts have worn since early in the space program.

The space agency has refused to elaborate on the unauthorized watches.

A space agency spokesman said no official from the Manned Spacecraft Center, home of the astronauts, will discuss any of the stamp, watch or signature dealings because they are "areas being investigated by the Justice Department."

Currently, interview requests submitted to the Manned Spacecraft Center spokesmen are carefully screened as to subject matter. Any that would deal with the astronaut profiteering are firmly declined.

Ad hoc committee to study a health plan

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — In a memorandum dated Sept. 13, Gov. Dale Bumpers ordered formation of an ad hoc committee to design a comprehensive state health plan within the next 60 days.

In the memorandum to Charles Crow, director of the

No U. S. dead listed in VN

SAIGON (AP) — For the first time in more than seven years, weekly casualty figures for the Vietnam war listed no Americans killed in action.

But the U.S. Command, in announcing today the figures for last week, said five Americans died from nonhostile causes, seven were wounded and four were missing or captured.

It was the lowest combined casualty count since the Command began keeping records on Jan. 1, 1965, and the first time there had been no American combat deaths since March 1, 1965.

Current U.S. troop strength in Vietnam is about 36,000, compared to 29,100 in March 1965. There are no U.S. infantry units engaged in combat in Vietnam, but there are still American advisers attached to South Vietnamese combat troops.

South Vietnamese casualties were put at 409 killed and 1,710 wounded, a result of Hanoi's continuing offensive in South Vietnam which has lasted more than 5½ months.

The Saigon command claimed 4,625 enemy troops were killed last week, a significant increase over the previous week's 3,449 enemy dead.

The allied commands now have listed these total casualties for the war:

American—45,857 killed in action, 303,387 wounded, 1,675 missing or captured, 10,274 non-hostile deaths.

South Vietnamese—155,372 killed in action, 407,160 wounded.

North Vietnamese and Viet Cong—890,690 killed.

state Planning Department, Bumpers said the committee should address itself to the No. 1 problem "namely how we can better deliver primary health care with doctors and facilities available to us."

"Our massive commitment to the training and graduating of more doctors will be eight years in the making — at a minimum," the memo said. "We can't wait that long to do a better job than we are now doing with the health personnel and facilities available to us now."

"This committee should assign priorities on a timetable basis which they think are possible and feasible for use to meet over the next five to eight years," the memorandum said. "Since this committee will have to work virtually around the clock during this 60-day period, I'm asking the head of the following agencies and departments to assign one full-time staff member to function under the aegis of the Comprehensive Health Planning Commission in the development of this plan."

The agencies were Social and Rehabilitative Services, state Health Department, Comprehensive Health Planning, Health Systems Foundation, Regional Medical Program, and the University of Arkansas Medical Center.

The Comprehensive Health Planning program was established in 1967 and charged with devising a health plan for the entire state.

Health Foundations was formed in July 1971 and given two years and $1,064,000 to produce a state health plan and devise the means of implementing it. Neither agency has come up with a plan.

Bumpers said the 60-day period was "short" but that he thought it was sufficient because much of the data needed to formulate the plan already was available in various agencies.

Bumpers said he had told the health officials that he did not want "a broad, bureaucratic plan that is incapable of implementation."

McGovern turns to Vietnam war during speech

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Returning with vigor to the subject about which he speaks most strongly, Sen. George McGovern says the Vietnam war doesn't honor America but is more than ever "an assault on the decency and self-respect of this great country."

His speech Wednesday night was the first he has devoted exclusively to the war since he won the Democratic presidential nomination last July.

It brought a dinner audience of several hundred campaign contributors to its feet for two standing ovations.

Earlier Wednesday, McGovern joined forces with a former rival, Sen. Edmund S. Muskie. The candidate also toured a factory in Ohio and made campaign stops in New Jersey.

Today he planned more appearances in New Jersey and in New York City.

In his address Wednesday he repeated some familiar attacks on President Nixon's failure to end the war and his resumption of large-scale bombing of North Vietnam as U.S. ground troops have been withdrawn from the South.

The candidate recalled the impromptu debate he had engaged in earlier Wednesday with workers at a Western Electric plant in Columbus, Ohio.

They had accused McGovern of offering amnesty to "traitors" who evaded the draft and of proposing "surrender" by promising to end the war 90 days after taking office.

And they said Nixon's bombing of North Vietnam would bring about release of American prisoners of war. "Why?" McGovern asked. "To show them we have power over here and are not just a flunky second-rate country," one worker responded.

In his speech Wednesday night McGovern said 550 U.S. pilots have been taken prisoners or have become missing in action since Nixon renewed the bombing, and he said the war has stained America's honor.

"The war now, more than at any stage since we've been involved in Southeast Asia, has now become an assault on the decency and self-respect of this great country," he said. "What we now present to the world is the spectacle of the richest and most powerful country in all the world standing off at a safe distance and raining down our terrible technology of death on helpless people below."

McGovern, once dismissed as a one-issue candidate who had no chance to win the Democratic nomination, said the war, in his mind, still surpasses all other issues in importance and is, indeed, an "obsession" with him.

He delivered a speech with far more fire than he usually puts into his standard campaign talk, which is a mixture of tax reform, the break-in at Democratic National headquarters, inflation, unemployment, Social Security and a host of other issues.

HELEN BOTTEL

Helen Help Us!

Stepfather out of Step
DEAR HELEN AND SUE:
I am the mother of two growing boys, 13 and 14. They are active in many sports. They also eat untempered meals a day—so my husband says. He is their stepfather. Whatever he is doing, when the boys come into the house, he immediately gets up to see which way they are headed. If they go to the refrigerator (even for a glass of water) he hollers, "Get the h— out of there! Don't you eat for ten already?" He constantly checks to see how much fruit and other food is gone—he's been known to hold an apple-count! Says he never saw kids eat so much. The truth is, he has never been around teenagers before.

The boys aren't hogs. They're actually on the slim side. They eat wholesome meals, but they get hungry in between times. Must they beg for every snack, and be refused? I've seen my husband tell them they can't have this or that and it's stayed in the refrigerator until it's spoiled.

Another thing, he won't allow them to watch any type of sports on TV because he doesn't care for sports.

I tell him better food and sports than hanging around the streets or popping pills. He says that's an illogical female argument—the first doesn't shut off the possibility of the second. Incidentally, we aren't broke.

So What CAN I tell him? Boy, do I need help!—WITS' END

DEAR WHITS' END:
Boy, you sure do! I could see a refrigerator-guard if the boys were overweight, or you had a big budget problem. Neither of these being the case, then your husband needs a refresher course on teenage hunger pangs. Can't he remember what it's like to be 14, active and never quite full? Start him talking about his childhood and maybe he'll loosen up a bit—on food, sports and all-around fatherhood.—SUE

DEAR W.E.:
For your husband's information, that "illogical female argument" of yours makes a lot of sense. Kids who are denied normal privileges (and between-meal snacks for growing boys are NORMAL!), yelled at, treated as expensive nuisances and given few rights, could easily drift to the streets where drugs are plentiful. Of course a closed refrigerator won't drive a boy to dope but an unfriendly stepfather can drive him out of the house, and into company that goes for different kinds of "sports."—HELEN

Musk Oil — Newest rage in perfume

Jovan's new Musk Oil is a unique, undiluted, perfume-arousing essence which has become the newest rage in perfumery.

Formed since time began for its aphrodisiac properties, Musk Oil in minute quantities is used today in most fine perfumes as a fixative (to add lasting power) and for its earthy, warm animal-like scent.

Musk Oil is now available — full strength — concentrating the magnetic power of this most sensuous of aromatic elements, specially refined and formulated by Jovan, master perfumers and creators of the elegantly luxurious Mink & Poodle Perfume and bath products.

Everywhere, women who have tried Jovan's Musk Oil are fascinated with the way it "turns on" the men around them. The scent itself is subtle and barely detectable to the wearer, while it sets pulses racing in everyone near by. Just a drop or two behind the ear, at the base of the throat, on the pulse spots, and it releases a woman's own unique animal attraction.

In ancient days, Cleopatra and Helen of Troy knew the hypnotic powers of Musk Oil, brought to them by traders in precious grains of musk from their haunts in the high Himalayas by the music of hunters playing primitive flutes.

Today, of course, it's not necessary to capture the musk deer to make musk oil, and Jovan's new perfume is carefully compounded to enhance the enchanting, provocative and sensuous characteristics that bring out those basic animal instincts.

"We're not saying it's an aphrodisiac," comments Barry Shipp, executive vice president of Jovan, "It's the people who are buying musk oil that are saying that. But there's no denying that Musk Oil is the most erogenous of all substances when you use it straight," he maintains.

Found in fine department, drug and specialty stores throughout the country, Jovan's Musk Oil is priced at $5 a bottle.

wood; Wilmet.

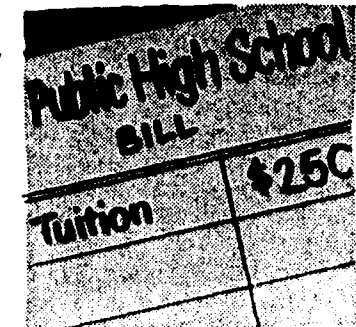

It was announced the Southwest District meeting will be January 31, 1973, First United Methodist Church, Hot Springs. The Arkansas Federation of Garden Clubs and South Central Region convention will be held at the Arlington Hotel, Hot Springs, March 25-28, 1973.

Tuition for Public School?

Squeezed for funds, a board of education decided to impose a tuition fee on all high school students. In short order, indignant parents went to court to complain. They pointed out that the state constitution called for a system of "free" public education.

In reply, the board argued that it was simply using its discretion to ease a tight financial situation. But the court decided that tuition was indeed unconstitutional. "The right of children to attend public school," said the court, "is not dependent on the discretion of anyone."

With education costs climbing, there has been renewed interest in the idea of charging fees of one kind or another to public school students. But tuition, at least, has usually been ruled out because of the requirement that education should be free.

Lesser fees, too, have been rejected by the courts more often than not. In another case, a school board tried to charge pupils for their textbooks. The board's theory was that "free" education referred merely to the school building and the teachers — not to "extras."

However, the court held this fee unconstitutional also, saying that books are an integral part of the educational process. The judge commented: "No education of any value is possible without school books." Nevertheless, another school board did succeed in collecting a textbook deposit from its students. This time, the plan had two features that made it more palatable: 1) the deposit was waived for any student who could not pay it; and 2) the deposit was refunded at the end of the semester, if the books were returned in reasonably good condition.

A court decided that this kind of a fee was too minor a burden on the educational process to be objectionable. All it amounted to, said the court, was a practical method of encouraging students to take good care of their books.

Mets beat Pirates 4-1

By TOM EMORY
 Associated Press Sports Writer
 Question 1: Did Tom Seaver have a good fastball?
 Question 2: Did the Pittsburgh Pirates clinch the National League East pennant?
 If you know the answer to No. 1 is "yes," you can rest assured the answer to No. 2 is "no."
 Seaver had his fastball and his hard slider and his curve Wednesday night and the result was the New York Mets temporarily beached the Pirates' flag-clinching party by beating them 4-1.

The Pirates need just one victory or a loss by the second-place Chicago Cubs, but the victory isn't coming easily.
 Pittsburgh took a 1-0 lead in the first inning on Vic Davalillo's triple and Rennie Stennett's single but Seaver bore down.
 The Mets scored three runs in the third, two of them on Duffy Dyer's triple. Jim Beau-champ added a run with a sacrifice fly. The fourth New York run was driven in by Jim Fregosi's single in the fourth.

grid quiz

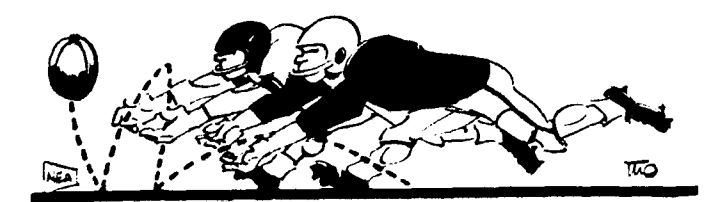

by Dave Nelson, executive secretary, NCAA Football Rules Committee

A Michigan end, at the snap, is positioned six yards to the outside of the legal clipping zone. A Purdue defensive halfback enters the legal clipping zone extended to the sideline. The defensive halfback is between the original position of the Michigan end and the center man of the offensive formation. The end blocks the Purdue player toward the position of the ball at the snap before the ball was advanced beyond the legal clipping zone extended to the sideline. The block by the Michigan end is below the waist. The play gains enough yardage for a first down.

The official should:
 1. Award Michigan a first down.

2. Penalize Michigan 15 yards from the spot of the foul for blocking below the waist.
 3. Penalize Michigan 15 yards from the spot of the snap for blocking below the waist.
 Answer: Number 2. Penalize Michigan 15 yards from the spot of the foul for blocking below the waist.

Weaver figures out pennant scramble

By HAL BOCK
 Associated Press Sports Writer
 Earl Weaver, bless his optimistic soul, has finally figured out the American League East pennant scramble. All he needs to win it is a little help from his friends.

After his Baltimore Orioles absorbed a vital 9-1 and 4-0 doubleheader sweep at the hands of front-running Boston to tumble 2½ games off the Red Sox' pace Wednesday night, Weaver studied his handy, dandy baseball schedule and discovered that Boston spends the next four days playing second-place Detroit. Then the Baltimore boss offered his analysis.

"I'll be rooting for my good friend Billy Martin Thursday and Saturday," revealed Weaver. "And I'll be rooting for my good friend Eddie Kasko Friday and Sunday. If my good friends win, we'll get Boston three in a row and we'll be all even with three games to go."

Simple, huh.
 Managers Martin of the Tigers and Kasko of the Red Sox are in infinitely better shape than Weaver today. Detroit trimmed Cleveland 4-1 Wednesday night and is second, one game behind the Sox with 12 to play compared to Boston's 13.

That's an awful lot better than Weaver's Orioles, now third, 2½ behind with only nine to play. Fourth place New York, rained out at Milwaukee, is 3½ behind with 12 games remaining.

Elsewhere in the American League Wednesday night, Oakland reduced its magic number in the West to seven by whipping Chicago 6-3, Minnesota topped Texas 3-1 and Kansas City defeated California 9-2.
 In the National League, Pittsburgh's magic number for clinching the East remained at one as the Pirates lost 4-1 to New York and second place Chicago defeated Montreal 6-2. Cincinnati reduced its clinching number to two, beating San Francisco 8-6 while runnerup Houston was losing to Atlanta, 13-6. In other games, Philadelphia edged St. Louis 2-1 and Los Angeles topped San Diego 5-3.
 Baltimore's slumbering bats ran into two hot pitchers in Boston and Marty Pattin and Luis Tiant simply proved to be too much for the Orioles.
 Pattin surrendered five hits in the opener and had an easy time of it when Boston exploded for seven runs in the fourth inning. Carlton Fisk drove in three runs and Rico Petrocelli and Dwight Evans two apiece for the Red Sox.
 The victory ran Pattin's record to 15-12 after a horrendous 2-9 start. He is 13-3 since June 12.

Tiant has been even hotter. The veteran right-hander with the herky-jerky motion, improved his record to 13-5 with a four-hitter in the nightcap. He has won nine of his last 10 games and six of his last seven victories have been shutouts.

Evans contributed a triple and homer to the second game victory.
 Woody Fryman fired a six-hitter and drove in a pair of runs with a clutch single after Duke Sims, another NL refugee, had snapped a ninth inning tie with a double.

The victory gave Fryman an 8-2 record with the Tigers since coming over from Philadelphia in early August. Since his arrival, Fryman alone has won more games for the Tigers than Mickey Lolich, Tom Timmerman and Joe Coleman have won combined.

The Yankees were trailing 2-0 against Milwaukee before the rain washed out the deficit and the game. It will be replayed tonight.
 After their five-hour, 15-inning marathon the night before, Oakland and Chicago played a relatively routine encore with the A's winning 6-3, restoring their West Division edge to five games over the slipping Sox.
 Ken Holtzman won his 18th game—a career high—for Oakland while Wilbur Wood, 24-15, took the loss. Home runs by Reggie Jackson and Sal Bando in the second inning posted the A's towards the victory.

John Mayberry crashed a first-inning grand slam homer and pitcher Steve Busby drove in three runs with a double and two singles as Kansas City trimmed California. Busby limited the Angels to six hits and had what appeared to be a grand slam homer nullified in the first inning when Umpire John Rice ruled that time had been called before he swung the bat.

Minnesota rallied for three runs in the eighth inning, two of them on a bases-loaded single by Bob Darwin to overtake Texas. The Rangers, limited to only two hits in eight innings against Jim Perry, led 1-0 until the late Twins' comeback.

Ali: 'All I did was close his eye'

NEW YORK (AP) — Muhammad Ali unleashed a flow of superlatives in praise of Floyd Patterson, offered him a rematch and then clamored for heavyweight champion Joe Frazier.
 "Patterson is a great, great fighter. I thought he'd be nothing but he surprised me," Ali said after he hammered Patterson's left eye shut, sliced open a gash above the optic and stopped him after seven rounds of a scheduled 12-round fight Wednesday night at Madison Square Garden.
 "I didn't knock him out. I didn't get him on a TKO. All I did was close his eye," Ali said.

Despite the loss, the 37-year-old Patterson said he would resume training and refused to entertain thoughts of retirement.

The bout between the two former heavyweight champions had few highlights for the first five rounds as Ali, 218 pounds and enjoying a nine-inch reach advantage, danced around Patterson and jabbed. Patterson, 188½ pounds, brought thunderous roars from the crowd of 17,378 that paid $512,361 when he landed several rights and left hooks and dug punches into Ali's midriff.

However, it was evident Ali was merely testing Patterson for the early part of the bout.

"Ali had to study Patterson's style for the first few rounds," Angelo Dundee, Ali's manager said. "Patterson was zigging and zagging and Ali had to figure him out."

In the sixth, Ali unloaded a flurry of lefts and rights, ripped open the cut and rocked Patterson with a right flush on the jaw shortly before the bell. He staggered Patterson again in the seventh with sharp combinations while the half-blinded Patterson—his eye swollen tight and blood streaming down his cheek—managed to land two good rights. The ringside physician halted the bout in between the seventh and eighth rounds.

Ali, who has been fighting regularly since being dethroned by Frazier in a 15-round title fight in March, 1971, said he was ready for the champion and berated Frazier for refusing to defend against a top contender.

"All he did was fight two nobodies and then retire to his chicken plantation," Ali said.

FLOYD PATTERSON

Razorbacks Facts:

Razorbacks meet Okla.

Oklahoma State visits Arkansas at War Memorial Stadium in Little Rock. Kickoff is set for 7:30 p.m.

Oklahoma State won its opening game of the season with a 21-3 victory over the University of Texas at Arlington. It also was the debut for Cowboy head coach Dave Smith. Arkansas did not play last Saturday; the Razorbacks lost their initial game of the season, 31-10, to the University of Southern California, Sept. 9.

Arkansas leads the series with Oklahoma State with 24 wins, 12 losses and one tie. The Razorbacks won 31-10 last year in Little Rock.

Oklahoma State (A&M) was a charter member of the SWC when it was founded Dec. 8, 1914, at the Rice Hotel in Houston. The Cowboys withdrew from the league in May 1925, after winning the basketball championship and hosting the conference track and field meet.

The Cowboys won six, lost 23, and tied one against league competition while carrying SWC membership. In the five games against Arkansas during the ten-year period, Oklahoma State led the series with three wins against two losses.

Arkansas defeated Oklahoma State, 31-10 last year in Little Rock. The Razorbacks gained 573 yards total offense in 93 plays, 317 in 58 rushing attempts and completed 23 of 35 passes for 256 yards. The Cowboys had 171 rushing and passing yards.

Arlington. The Cowboys erased the 434 yards net rushing mark set against Arkansas in 1945 with 500 yards on the ground, and their 583 yards total offense easily exceeded the 521 gained against Denver in 1945 and Wichita State in 1949. OSU could have easily gone over 600 yards rushing had not the Cowboys sustained seven fumbles. The Cowboys had 363 yards in the first half.

Quarterback Brent Blackman led the Cowboys in rushing with 173 yards, but he received excellent support from Fountain Smith's 121 and George Palmer's 99 yards.

USC's 31-10 victory over the Razorbacks was the largest losing deficit Arkansas has had since Texas defeated the Hogs, 42-7, at Austin in the final game of the 1970 season. It also was the worst opening loss for the Razorbacks since Mississippi's 25-0 win at Oxford in 1928. Ole Miss also defeated Arkansas, 16-0, in the first game of the 1961 season at Jackson.

Arkansas has lost only 15 opening games since it began competition in 1894. The Razorbacks suffered first-game setbacks in 1901, 1903, 1904, 1905, 1906, 1918, 1925, 1926, 1950, 1959, 1961, 1967, 1970 and two weeks ago. Arkansas salvaged winning seasons in only five of these previous campaigns. The Hogs were 4-3-0 in 1904, 3-2-0 in 1918, 7-2-0 in 1928, 9-3-0 in 1961 and 9-2-0 in 1970.

Statistically, USC had several outstanding performances in its win over the Razorbacks.

The Trojans had 477 yards total offense, ranking third behind Rice's 583 in 1963 and Texas' 517 in 1970, and 24 first downs, equaling Texas A&M's eight best production against the Razorbacks in 1968. Mike Roe's 267 yards passing ranked fifth behind Texas Tech's Tom Wilson in 1965, and his 290 total offense yards was sixth.

Several Razorbacks missed practice last week suffering from a flu virus. Quarterback Joe Ferguson was in the Washington County Hospital for three days, but was released Thursday. He did not practice any last week. Coach Frank Broyles has indicated he expects all of his athletes to be healthy Monday except defensive back Clark Irwin, who will be out at least six weeks with a shoulder injury.

"I'm very concerned about the wishbone offense," Broyles says. Oklahoma State executed very well as evidenced by its statistics (500 yards rushing) and would have scored a lot of points had not they sustained seven fumbles. Statistics from the wishbone have been more impressive early than ever before...just look at what Oklahoma State, Oklahoma, UCLA and Michigan State have already done. These teams have started out like there isn't any defense for it."

Oklahoma State will be the first of four Arkansas opponents utilizing the wishbone offense. Southwest Conference members Texas, Texas A&M and TCU also use it as the basic offensive set.

Joe Namath's Hungarian 'cousins'

By IRA BERKOW
NEA Sports Editor

MUNICH — (NEA) — Joe Namath has been called many names, with "cousin" rarely being one of them.

A pair of Hungarian Olympic team javelin hurlers named Nemeth uphold that ignominious tradition.

"Never heard of him," said Angela Ranky (nee Nemeth) and Miklos Nemeth.

The quest for the tribal roots of Joe Namath of Beaver Falls, Pa., was embarked upon with the knowledge that Namath's Hungarian grandfather was named Nemeth.

It was common for New York immigration officers with clip boards and mossy ears to mess up the names of the strange-speaking folks off the boats. The Hungarian "e" might easily sound like a truncated "a." Thus Nemeth became Namath. (Years later, Joe Namath would return to New York, the scene of the crime, and raise various kinds of hell.)

In Hungary Nemeth (which means "German") is as common as Smith in the United States. In fact neither Angela Nemeth Ranky nor Miklos Nemeth are directly related to one another.

"But remember," said Angela, 1968 Olympic gold medal winner, "all Hungarians are descended from Attila the Hun."

Untamed is the melody most associated with the American Hun, Namath, who confessed to being rocked to sleep before big New York Jet games by a blonde and a bottle of schnapps.

This does not scandalize Miklos. "The man is a professional, no? He must know already what he can afford himself. It must make him a bit quiet, not so nervous before a competition."

Miklos is bright-eyed and bushy-mouthed. He sports a sprout that may be called a mini-Fu Manchu. He was told that Joe Namath once shocked puritans with similar foliage, then accepted $10,000 to scrape it off for a television razor-blade commercial.

Miklos, the 25-year-old na-

COUSINS? The follow-throughs and the names are nearly identical but Hungarian Olympic javelin thrower Angela Nemeth Ranky, right, is not sure if she is a relative of New York Jets quarterback Joe Namath, above.

tional javelin recordbreaker, raised his eyebrows. "In my country, what I would get for shaving my mustache is a big boot," he said, with an impersonation of a field goal kicker.

Neither Angela nor Miklos know much about football. Angela's husband, a basketball coach, subscribes to Sports Illustrated. She sometimes browses through the magazine but never lingers over the football stuff.

Miklos happened to watch a professional football game on television while in Mexico City to throw in the 1968 Olympics (he was injured and failed to qualify). "I was interested to see Bob Hayes," he said. "We know him from the 1964 Olympics. He must be also a famous man in the United States because the television speaker always mentioned his name."

They seemed to take in stride the news of Namath's new two-year half-million dollar contract. National athletes are treated well in Hungary, too. For example, Angela, 26, whose profession is normally a physical education teacher at the University of Hungary, wanted to get married before 1968 but was prevented because of a housing shortage. After she won the gold medal an apartment was conveniently made available. Miklos is a perennial "student" in international relations at the University and receives 1,500 florins (about $60) a month from the state.

But both believe that the most famous Nemeth is Miklos' father, Imre, a gold medal hammer thrower (yet another Nemeth flinger) in the 1948 London Olympics. "He was a big man, known all over the world," said Angela.

She also said in so many words that the Hungarian sports prowess is a home-grown specialty rivaling goulash. Hungary has been since 1936 at or near the top in number of Olympic medals won based on population of a country.

"We are small, but we are proud," said Miklos. "The East Germans now are like us. They want to show they are strong and at least equal to the West, because the West has not recognized them. So they feel they must prove themselves in sport."

Joe Namath's motivations have been less easily plumbed.

Team Canada arrives in Russia

MOSCOW (AP) — Team Canada, its back to the wall in an eight-game exhibition hockey series with Russia, arrived here Wednesday along with about 1,000 fans.

The players were bused off to their hotel under cloak-and-dagger arrangements at the airport, but they later mixed with fans who crowded the lobbies in an effort to catch a glimpse of the North American professionals.

The Canadians, fresh from two less-than-glorious exhibition games last weekend in Sweden where they won 4-1 and tied 4-4 against the Swedish nationals, are on the short end of a 2-1-1 mark with the Soviet all-star team.

The first of four games here is Friday at 12:30 p.m., EDT.

A view from the inside in Uganda

Editor's Note — AP Correspondent Andrew Torchia arrived safely in England today after his release from detention in Uganda. Torchia, a Pennsylvanian who is based in Kenya, was seized last weekend soon after he arrived in Uganda. Here is his story.

By ANDREW TORCHIA

LONDON (AP) — Uganda soldiers pinned a man on the ground while a woman beat him with a rawhide whip — 10, 20, 50 times — until he screamed and writhed and the blood ran.

Thirty other soldiers — officers and men — shouldered around to watch. They laughed, enjoying the spectacle, and no one intervened. The beating went on for minutes — forever, it seemed, before the crowd dispersed and the screaming stopped.

This scene of bizarre and casual cruelty Wednesday afternoon was for 13 British, Swedish, American and Canadian detainees — their last view of Makindye military prison. None of us knew who the woman was or what the whipping was about. We stood silently in the hot sun at the prison gate and tried not to look. Then guards handed back our shoes and money.

Most of us had spent three days in Makindye and now we were being released from captivity under the undisciplined army that has controlled Uganda for the past 20 months. Ten, including six British and two Swedish newsmen, were being deported on a night flight to London.

Three were freed in Kampala.

Many details of what went on in Makindye cannot be told. Their disclosure could endanger others still imprisoned there without being charged and without hope of immediate release. One man has been inside more than a year.

Ugandan soldiers and detectives, swarming around Kampala following a reported invasion Sunday from Tanzania, detained 150 or more Asians and whites, plus uncounted Africans suspected of disloyalty to President Idi Amin. As fear and suspicion mounted against whites and Asians, soldiers wielding submachine guns made arrests at a swimming pool and in a bedroom at mid-night.

Many detainees were clubbed with rifle butts. Others were led from their cells and disappeared.

Troops trucked dozens of Uganda police into Makindye as prisoners—lending support to the belief that the fighting in southern Uganda resulted at least as much from tribal feuds within the country as from the guerrilla invasion Amin had announced.

Some prisoners slept on bare concrete floors, others had blankets or thin mattresses. Meals were skimpy — sweet tea and dry bread for breakfast, cold baked beans or biscuits for lunch, meat scraps and cold cornmeal for dinner.

At the central police station in Kampala, more than 50 white men, women and children were kept in one room. Babies' pants were hung on the window bars to dry and urine from adjoining cells ran on the floor. I was at the central police station only briefly, while being taken from my hotel to Makindye.

I was detained by three plainclothesmen during dinner Sunday night at a hilltop tourist hotel in Kampala. Where was my radio transmitter and where was my pistol, they asked, evidently expecting a spy.

I was made to strip while they searched my bed and rifled through photographs in my wallet.

I was never formally charged or told what wrongdoing was suspected. The offense seemed to be that I was a foreign newsmen who could not accept uncritically official Kampala pronouncements on the fighting.

Eight soldiers guarded me, their only prisoner, on the ride to Makindye in the back of an open truck. When I was slow clambering down, a soldier barked, "Get down quick like a man, not like a woman."

Makindye, on a hill four miles from Kampala, is a collection of one-story buildings behind a double fence of barbed wire. Cows and chickens roam the grounds. Soldiers lie idly on the grass, cleaning their weapons.

Our building held up to 18 prisoners in seven 10x7 cells which were airy and clean, unlike the dank rooms at the central police station.

There were three Asian traders whose ivory exports had been blocked by the military. A young Tanzanian army deserter was taken from his cell one day and did not return. Two Africans led twice-daily Roman Catholic prayer services for the Christian, Hindu and Moslem inmates.

Lionel, a British tea-taster, asked if he could telephone the managing director of his firm. He couldn't. Two Africans were beaten until they couldn't stand, covered with blankets and carried away, perhaps already dead.

Ismail, Ghanaian chairman of a shipping line, had entered Uganda to help organize transport for Asians being expelled by Amin. He claimed it was a case of mistaken identity.

Tony, a shy, bearded British student, was ill for two days after taking a rifle butt on the head.

And there was Manubhai Madhavani, 43-year-old Asian head of Uganda's biggest industrial combine, estimated at more than $100 million in value. Madhavani Enterprises employ more than 15,000 persons and manufacture 19 products, from steel to sugar. Madhavani, in prison more than two weeks but not formally charged, could lose it all in the Asian exodus.

Madhavani, always cheerful and dignified, calmed new arrivals. The morale of the whole cell block came to depend on him.

"Come in and sit down, don't be formal," he would say, patting the floor of his cell. The walls, scarred with mottos carved by former prisoners, seemed more like home.

A prison day was an emotional roller-coaster. A harsh word from a guard began the day badly. A shred of news that the fighting had stopped raised hope for release.

A dozen vultures waiting outside for food scraps added to the gloom. Soldiers began digging holes outside the door. Trenches or graves? Inexplicably, a small storeroom had a badminton set. Games in the corridor, playing carom shots off the cell bars, eased the boredom.

On the plane, he counted noses and wished us a safe flight.

"See you next year," someone shouted back. But he didn't mean it.

'Pat' on the back

LOS ANGELES (AP) — First Lady Pat Nixon gave California's ailing aerospace industry a pat on the back during her first stop in the state on a re-election campaign swing for her husband.

After seeing some of the projects at NASA's Ames Research Center in Sunnyvale, she said Wednesday it was a "marvelous place" and doing work "that will benefit mankind."

Mrs. Nixon was here today to meet Southern California newsmen before dedicating a senior citizens' home at nearby Riverside to be named for the President's mother, Hanna Milhous Nixon.

Some scientists who showed Mrs. Nixon around the Ames center said there has been a 20 per cent cut in personnel there, from 2,200 to 1,700 in the past three or four years. It was typical of some of the problems of the industry in this state, where unemployment has been severe among scientists and technicians.

"We haven't been able to hire in five years," one Ames doctor told reports. He lamented a lack of technicians.

When a reporter asked Mrs. Nixon if she thought Ames should have its budget cuts restored she said, "I don't know anything about finances."

She added, "I do think what they are doing here will benefit mankind generally. Most things they are doing here can be used for things other than space."

Mrs. Nixon is on a 5,400-mile, six-day trip to seven states and is spending two days in California, a crucial area in Nixon's re-election effort.

Clyde Mann, 11, told Mrs. Nixon "Don't worry about McGovern this year. We'll stamp him out."

On her tour at Ames, test pilot Fred Drinkwater III gave Mrs. Nixon a ride in a three-story-high flight simulating machine that was so realistic she said she thought she was "flying about 1,000 miles" and when turbulence was introduced it made her feel like "getting seasick."

She saw the flow of blood in her arteries charted on a monitoring machine and tried out a remote control mechanism that can move a robot or provide power for use in physical therapy to help those with injured muscles.

After looking over a huge human centrifuge developed to test the tolerance of space pilots to the pull of gravity, Mrs. Nixon met 66-year-old Joseph Barrios of Gilroy, Calif., whose life was saved when he was whirled in the machine to move a bullet that was dangerously lodged in his brain during a holdup.

MARIJUANA FOUND

HELENA, Ark. (AP) — A charge of possession of a controlled substance with intent to deliver was filed Wednesday against Melvin C. Forney III, about 22, of Marianna, according to Pros. Atty. Gene Raff. Raff said Forney was arrested Tuesday night by West Helena police. He said an undisclosed amount of marijuana was confiscated.

People in the News

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Olympic Swimmer Mark Spitz has signed a contract with the William Morris Agency of Los Angeles.

Norman Brokaw, a partner in the agency, said Wednesday he hardly knows where to start in setting appearances for Spitz. He says Spitz has offers from movie companies, television and advertisers.

The swimmer's first appearance is set for Oct. 5 on television with Lobs Hope. Spitz says he plans to give up his predoctoral studies at Indiana University, at least for the time being.

DETROIT (AP) — High wire artist Karl Wallenda has escaped serious injury in a 20-foot fall, another incident in a series of tragedies that has stalked his troupe.

The 67-year-old Wallenda was descending a rope from the high wire, hand over hand, when he lost his grip and dropped to the floor Wednesday night.

Doctors said a preliminary examination disclosed no serious injury. The accident occurred as Wallenda finished his high wire act on the opening night of his new show at the Detroit Olympia.

Ten years ago, two members of the Wallenda troupe died in a fall at Detroit. Two other Wallenda performers have been killed since that accident.

TOKYO (AP) — Japan's new prime minister, Kakuei Tanaka, will visit Peking Sept. 25-30 to discuss the normalization of relations between his nation and mainland China.

Dr. Lawrence E. Lamb

Can ailing veins be removed?

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb—I would like some advice on varicose veins. I am in my early 50s and enjoy sports such as tennis and swimming. But while others wear shorts and bathing suits, I have to wear support hose and slacks because of unsightly dark purple veins. I have tried all kinds of cover-ups, but to no avail. Are there any operations besides skin grafts for my ankles and bends of my knees? My ankles and knees are all purple with small veins. I also have large knot-like ones in one leg. Please give some advice. Is this type of operation dangerous? I'm tired of bundling up in hot weather.

Dear Reader—Varicose veins are a problem. The large veins can cause accumulation of blood in the legs and ankles causing swelling, skin discoloration and even ulceration of the skin. The very small tiny veins that some women have in the surface of the skin cause no medical problem, and are only a cosmetic consideration.

Before anything is done, a complete physical examination has to be accomplished to determine the state of all of the veins in the legs. There are some superficial veins that some people can see and then there are large deep veins within the large muscles of the leg and thigh that are equally important.

If the large veins in the legs are normal, the little tiny superficial network of veins that some women have can be eradicated by a little electrical needle, much in the same way small dilated veins in the nose can be corrected. This procedure is of little value however, if the large veins in the skin and deeper in the legs are involved. In this case, it is sometimes possible to strip out the varicose veins depending on the finding of the medical examination. Skin grafts are completely useless in these conditions unless the underlying problem of the varicose veins is corrected first and good circulation is established. Then a graft isn't needed.

Dear Dr. Lamb—Recently a reader wrote you about epilepsy. I am also an epileptic and have been examined and found the cause to be irregular brain waves. I have medication for it. Is it possible that being overly excited, overly tired, or worried can bring on an attack or seizure?

Dear Reader—Epilepsy is not actually caused by irregular brain waves. The irregular brain wave is a manifestation of the epilepsy itself. The actual seizure may be thought of as being caused by an electrical short circuit in the brain. When the electrical disorder occurs it causes the irregular brain wave and stimulates the body to respond to cause the convulsion. The medicine acts to decrease the excess electrical activity in the brain and thereby prevents convulsions.

In most instances when sufficient medicine is given, the overactive electrical areas in the brain can be calmed down enough to prevent them from precipitating a convulsion, even in the face of most normal events of ordinary living that you mentioned.

THERE'S A LOT RIDING ON YOUR VOTE.

Little things. The price of a bologna sandwich. A pint of milk. And bigger things. A new coat for winter. Sunday shoes. School fees. Every pinch on your pocketbook makes it harder for you to provide.

Why should your family have to help pay the price of two unneeded train crew members?

A lot of things are at stake for your family November 7. Study the issue closely. Vote FOR Act 1.

Advancements in rank went to three boys:

Addison and Ted Tolleson

Under the new Scouting program boys are appointed to the leadership corps. These boys interview the younger Scouts for advancement to tenderfoot, second class, and first class. The corps in Troop 92 is composed of Ricky Sisson, Bobby Barger, Ricky Addison, Rob Gary and Clay Morgan.

Another new phase of the Scouting program is skill awards which consist of gold belt loops with pictures of the skill it represents.

These belt loops went to: Ricky Sisson, Ricky Addison, Clay Morgan, Glenn Cochran, Rob Gary, Bobby Barger, John Gams, Scott Patton, Lou Moore, Mark Moore, Mike Beard, Gerald Beard, Joe Van Horn, Bill and Mike Smith for first aid and camping. Harold Sisson, Scoutmaster, said "Without the fathers of Scouts and their support, Troop 92 would not be on top as it now is."

Sisson also said that the scouts will be operating parking lots again this year at two locations—K Park and the corner of Sixth St. and Mockingbird Ln.

The proceeds are going to finance troop activities.

Business mirror

NEW YORK (AP) — You might think that the shoe industry would have fewer problems than others, since all but a few of us are shod from infancy to finality and even beyond.

The $7 billion shoe industry has survived some serious assaults. And currently sales have never been higher. Twenty years ago a man probably bought one pair a year. Now the average is up to two for men, and close to five for women. Count all kinds of footwear, and sales total around $60 million.

But there are problems, and there always have been. With profit margins running under 3 per cent on sales, some threat seems always to lurk round the corner. Some originate in social change, some from lack of foresight.

The current situation, industry spokesmen say, results from factors that have no precedent. First, imports have taken about 38 per cent of the domestic market. Second, the price of hides has galloped 120 per cent in one year.

And so, the shoe people say, in another few months a man won't be able to buy a pair of leather shoes for under $20. He'll be able to buy a pair for less than that but they won't be leather. More likely they'll be vinyl.

The tendency to turn to man-made materials is unlikely to change, says Mark Richardson, president of the American Footwear Industries Association, at least until two government-involved decisions are made:

1. A decision for or against a quota on imports, being actively sought by manufacturers.

2. A resolution of "the hide problem," which now results in large bundles of American hides—this country is the only major supplier—being shipped to a growing foreign industry.

But whereas the industry has sometimes been accused of lacking initiative and with being inclined to seek low-wage areas rather than innovate, it seems now to be seizing the situation, changing it, adapting to it.

Now, forced ahead by young, fashion-conscious buyers, it has learned to enlarge its volume by changing styles, sometimes radically, even to the point of dismaying and offending some conventional shoe men.

In manufacturing, the industry has usually relied on human labor—average output is two pair per manhour—when other industries were learning to use machines and save. While this is partly the nature of the industry, changes are being made.

The use of manmade materials will likely permit greater use of automation, because plastics and vinyls and the polyurethanes, unlike nature's product, are consistent in quality and shape.

Injection molding, in which shoes are cast from fluids, is catching on. And, with the growing use of manmade materials, the one-step manufacture of soles—unit soles—is speeding production.

Relief is coming also from an entirely different source, the foreign worker. In Italy, wages and benefits per hour have risen from $1 five years ago to $1.51 now. The U.S. rate is $2.90, but the rate of gain much smaller.

Stans added to list in Watergate suit

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's chief campaign fund raiser, Maurice Stans, has been added to the list of defendants in the $3 million civil suit brought by Democrats against Republicans in the Water bugging case.

U.S. District Court Judge Charles Richey ruled in favor of the Democrats Wednesday in permitting Stans to be named a defendant.

In addition, Richey allowed the Democratic officials to name as defendants former White House aides G. Gordon Liddy and E. Howard Hunt Jr.—both also under indictment on criminal charges in connection with the June 17 break-in at Democratic headquarters here—and Hugh W. Sloan Jr., who resigned as treasurer of the Committee for the Re-election of the President shortly after the break-in.

But Richey dismissed as defendants in the civil suit the five men arrested inside Democratic headquarters and indicted with Liddy and Hunt on criminal charges.

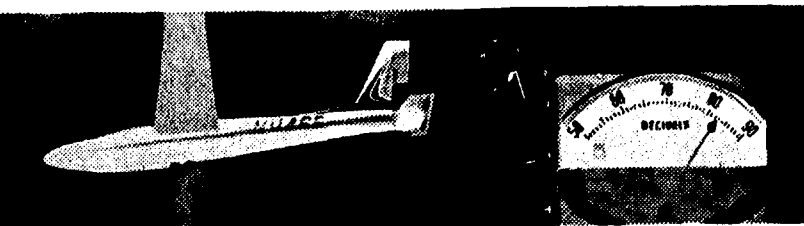

The civil suit accuses Stans of financing the break-in and bugging, charges Stans denies.

MAN IS FOUND DEAD IN CITY JAIL

HELENA, Ark. (AP) — Pros. Atty. Gene Raff said that James Washington, 38, of Oneida was found dead Wednesday in the Helena City Jail.

Washington was arrested Sunday on a charge of driving while intoxicated. He pleaded innocent Monday in Municipal Court and his trial was to have been Friday morning.

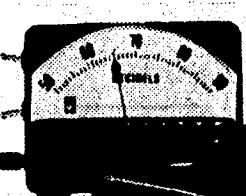

THE '73 FORDS ARE HERE.

The airborne glider. 82 decibels at 60 mph.

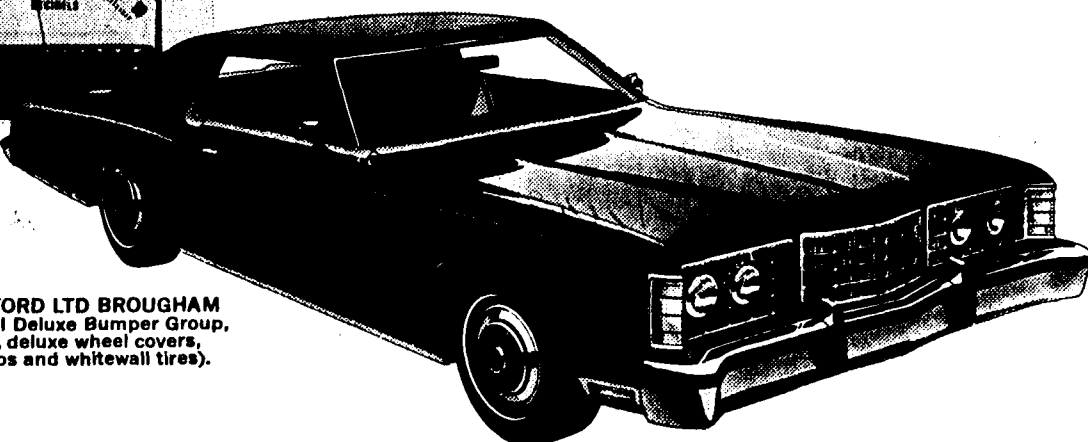

The '73 Ford LTD. 65 decibels at 60 mph. Quiet is the sound of a well-made car.

THE QUIET 1973 FORD LTD BROUGHAM (shown with optional Deluxe Bumper Group, Convenience Group, deluxe wheel covers, front cornering lamps and whitewall tires).

At 60 mph a '73 Ford LTD rode quieter than an airborne glider.

On July 27, 1972, General Radio Co. tested a '73 LTD against an airborne glider. Both at 60 mph and with identical sound level meters. The result: the Ford was quieter. But the new LTD is more than just quiet. It is well made from its power front disc brakes, power steering and automatic transmission, standard equipment, to its luxurious, comfortable, roomy interior. There are 16 new Ford models to choose from and each will convince you that quiet is the sound of a well-made car.

A '73 Torino rode so smooth, a high wire artist kept balance on a road of 2x4's.

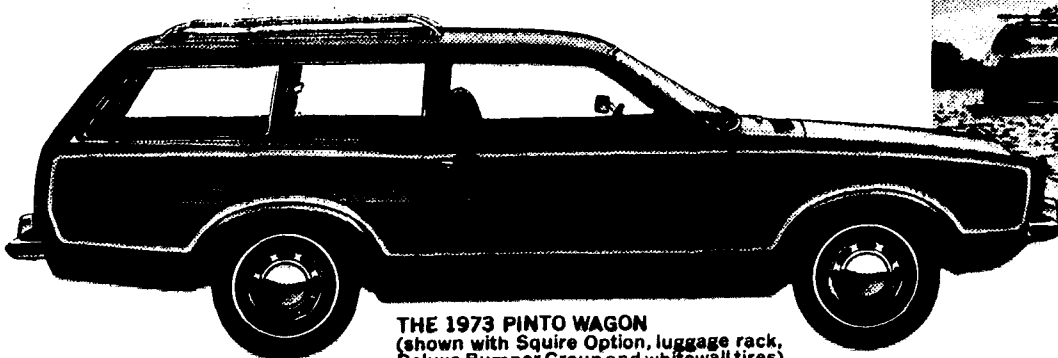

Chances are you won't try to balance yourself on top of your new Torino. But, when you're riding inside, you'll still appreciate Torino's refined suspension—because it helps to cushion bumps, absorb road vibrations and reduce body sway. You feel solidly in control while you ride in comfort and luxury. The solid mid-size Torino. Smooth riding, strong and quiet.

THE SOLID 1973 FORD TORINO BROUGHAM (shown with optional front bumper guards, deluxe wheel covers and whitewall tires).

'73 Pinto: When you get back to basics, you get back to Ford.

Ford, the company that built the first basic, solid, reliable car seventy years ago—has built today's basic, solid reliable car: Pinto. It's become America's top selling economy car for more reasons than economy. Here are some of those reasons: A 1600 cc. engine developed and perfected in over 10 years of actual driving. Rack-and-pinion steering. Solid welded body, electrocoated to fight corrosion. 4-speed transmission—lubed for life. Everything we've learned in seventy years of car making—all the basics—we build into every Pinto Wagon, Runabout and Sedan. When you get back to basics, you get back to Pinto.

THE 1973 PINTO WAGON (shown with Squire Option, luggage rack, Deluxe Bumper Group and whitewall tires).

There are 39 new models to choose from.

And every 1973 Ford, Thunderbird, Torino, Mustang, Maverick and Pinto—comes equipped with new energy-absorbing bumpers and steel guard rails in all side doors. Steel-belted radial ply tires and AM/FM stereo radios are options on all models. Test-drive these new Fords at your Ford Dealer's now.

All 1973 cars must meet Federal Emissions Standards before sale. See your Ford Dealer for details.

Antipoverty bill signed by Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has signed into law a $4.8-billion antipoverty bill after it was stripped of a provision freeing a program of legal services for the poor from direct government control.

The bill keeps the legal services program under the supervision of the Office of Economic Opportunity, where it has been from the start.

The bill also authorizes $2.4 billion each for the current and next fiscal years for such OEO activities as food and medical services, alcoholic counseling, the Community Action program.

New projects are authorized for environmental employment, rural housing, consumer action, community planning and youth recreation.

Nixon, who signed the bill Wednesday, originally expressed support for making Legal Services an independent corporation, but only if he retained the power to appoint all its directors.

Miss Downey named as Scout field advisor

Mrs. Earl Tews, executive director of the Conifer Girl Scout Council has announced the appointment of Miss Diane Downey as a field advisor for the Council in Hope, Prescott and Gurdon, and in Atlanta and Queen City, Tex.

Diane became a Girl Scout as a second grade Brownie and was active through Senior Scouting. She earned Curved Bar, which was the highest rank attainable at that time. As a senior Scout she served on the Senior Planning Board. Diane's current hobbies include drama, music, sports and ventriloquism. She is a member of the Association of American University Women.

Miss Downey, a native of Hobbs, N.M., is a recent graduate of the New Mexico State University, Las Cruces, where she earned a BA degree in Psychology. Youth is safe despite 'swim' in a culvert DULUTH, Minn. (AP) — "Everything was so dark and I thought there was no end to it at all," says young John Schroepfer of the harrowing minutes he spent in a world of swirling, roaring water.

For an estimated 3 to 4 minutes, the 12-year-old youth fought for air and against the rushing water Wednesday as he was carried the length of a two-block-long culvert into which he fell.

The near tragedy began when school recessed early after a deluge of nearly four inches of rain, the third downpour to hammer the Duluth area in six weeks.

John and a pal, 13-year-old Steve Chapman, rode their bikes to a nearby restaurant. At the rear of the building, they watched as runoff water poured into the concrete culvert, which ranges in size from 2 to 12 feet.

"A man stood there taking pictures like mad of the rushing water," John said. "Then he asked us to lift up the boards covering the culvert, saying the water would go in easier."

The two boys managed to remove the boards. Then, suddenly, John lost his footing and slid down into the torrent.

"I swam, I fought, I held my breath," John recalled. "I was pulled and bounced and tumbled just like I was a ball."

A strong swimmer, John said that at several points he went down "very deep and couldn't hardly hold my breath any longer."

But each time he surfaced just in time, snatched a breath of air and then swam or was dragged on. The current tore the shoes and socks from his feet.

"I was just about to give up when I thought I saw a light so I fought the water harder," the boy said.

The light was the other end of the culvert. He crawled out, dazed, and stumbled into a nearby store.

A clerk called police. The boy was taken to a hospital for treatment of bruises, a cut on the head and a sprained wrist and then was sent home to rest.

John, the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Schroepfer, reminded his mother that he wouldn't be able to go to school Thursday.

She only smiled and said, "Heaven didn't need a good little boy today."

News Briefs

STATELINE, Nev. (AP) — Authorities were reported working on several leads in the $178,500 robbery of a Lake Tahoe casino by a gunman in cowboy garb.

A bandit wearing a western hat, dark glasses and a false beard, caught five Harrah's Tahoe casino employees off guard late Tuesday and escaped with what was described as the largest haul ever in a Nevada casino robbery.

The thief scrambled out through a crowded casino and ran across the state line—just yards away—and leaped onto the back of a waiting motorcycle driven by an accomplice.

Authorities searched in Nevada and California for suspects. An FBI spokesman said no immediate developments were expected but that agents were working on a number of possible clues.

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — The State Supreme Court has scheduled a hearing Monday on a case in which a man charged with murder has been ordered to undergo involuntary surgery for the removal of a bullet lodged in his chest.

The top court temporarily stayed Wednesday the Superior Court directive ordering the surgery on James Edward Creamer, one of seven persons charged in the 1971 slaying of Dr. Warren Bond Matthews, 62, and his wife, Dr. Rosina Vincenzi Matthews, 59, of Marietta.

Superior Court Judge Luther C. Hames of Marietta ordered the surgery performed after prosecuting attorney Ben Smith said he believes the bullet lodged in Creamer's body was fired from the pistol owned by Mrs. Matthews.

Creamer's attorney argued

Agnew: New man, new campaign

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Spiro T. Agnew speaks no longer of the tongue-twisting political demagoguery he created two years ago—not, as he tells it, because there is a new Agnew but because this is a new campaign.

"It's a question of emphasis and style," the vice president said in describing his change in campaign tactics. "It's not a question of changing my principles, it's not a question of walking away from what I said before."

Two days into his new-look campaign, Agnew told a news conference: "I like it, I like the way it's being received, it's very comfortable to me."

Essentially, Agnew is conducting now what most politicians would consider simply a standard campaign. For him, compared with what has gone before, it is different.

He is not avoiding controversy nor has he turned soft on the opposition. Agnew told the Ohio Republican convention Wednesday night that Sen. George McGovern's position "are so far to the left sometimes they're almost out of sight."

But the flamboyant rhetoric of his earlier campaigns is tempered now and Agnew says he is more attuned to issues, less to personalities.

Agnew said he decided even before consulting President Nixon that such a change would make him a more effective campaigner for the Republican ticket. "He agreed," Agnew said.

And so on his first full-scale campaign swing Agnew has:

—Suggested in a St. Louis speech that his audience of Rotary Club members should listen to the Democratic side of the campaign argument, too.

—Said he likes it better now that he isn't cast as the prime critic of the press. "I don't think you fellows are so bad personally," he added.

—Said that he is not going to address his campaign to Democratic problems but to the administration record "because we'll be trying to appeal to independents and Democrats" instead of knocking the other side.

—Noted in assailing McGovern's defense-budget proposals that he doesn't question the sincerity of the Democratic nominee although "I totally disagree with his conclusions."

The theme of the 1970 Agnew campaign was a nonstop attack against the Democrats—and on Republican—who he called "radical liberals," accusing them of advocating far-out positions and then trying to depict themselves as moderates at election time.

In the old Agnew style, McGovern would have been a prime candidate for the "radical" label. In the new, the Democratic nominee is criticized for his views but not denounced.

Gone are the other villains of 1970, the "troglydotic leftists," the "nattering nabobs of negativism," the "vicars of vacillation," and the "hopeless, helpless hypochondriacs of history."

According to Agnew, any flaws in the old campaigning were in the eyes of his beholders, not in his performance. "I make no apology for anything I said in any of those campaigns," he said. "I regret that some of the things were misunderstood, perhaps, and I regret that connotations were placed around some of the more colorful rhetoric I may have used."

"I'm trying this year to adopt a new style, a style that will not bring about these misconceptions in my intent," Agnew said. "I'm also trying to place the emphasis in this campaign on very well established and logical and substantiated positions."

But within minutes of that analysis, Agnew was saying that he has a personal theory, a "wild fancy," that the men accused of raiding and attempting to wiretap Democratic headquarters were encouraged by someone who purposely blew the lid to embarrass the Republican party.

McGovern called that a cheap shot. Agnew retorted that McGovern was being silly. He said McGovern was not impervious to cheap-shot charges himself, then quickly added that he made no such accusations.

One inevitable question is whether Agnew's new approach is part of an image overhaul through which he hopes to position himself for a 1976 presidential campaign.

His answer: "No."

Whatever the intent, the political fact is that the new look is better tuned to a presidential-campaign future.

Agnew said he doesn't intend to get tough in his 1970 style even if polls indicate the Republican margin is shrinking. "I don't think there is any chance that it would be necessary for me to employ the tactics that I did when I was trying to shake up all of the me-too-ers who were hanging on my campaign coattails as I went around the country in 1970," Agnew said.

Indeed, part of the Republican campaign game plan is to encourage Democrats to do just that, to turn away from McGovern and vote for the GOP ticket.

The vice president was taking his overhauled campaign to Nashville and Chattanooga, Tenn., today after a brief stop in Washington. He and his entourage are traveling aboard two chartered jets leased for $171,000 a month plus flight and landing fees.

Unlike the 1968 and 1970 Agnew campaigns, this one is being conducted, at least at the outset, with no White House liaison man aboard.

Agnew said his change in style not only seems more effective, "it obviates all the questions about my rhetoric which were never very appealing to me."

"The rhetoric or the questions?" Agnew was asked. "Neither," he replied.

Strike closes plant

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP)

Officials at the Volunteer Army Ammunition Plant at nearby Tyner have called back to work members of a Teamsters Union local who refused to cross another union's picket line earlier this week.

A statement by ICI America, Inc., operating contractor at the TNT manufacturing plant, said picket lines had been withdrawn from the plant gates.

The plant's production lines were shut down Monday when members of Teamsters Local 515 refused to cross picket lines set up by members of the International Chemical Workers Union from the Indiana Army Ammunition Plant in Charleston, Ind.

ICI is also the operating contractor at the Indiana plant, where the chemical workers went on strike a week ago.

The firm won a federal court order Tuesday to block participation in the strike by members of the Teamsters but they again refused to cross the picket lines Wednesday.

"THAT OLDER GENERATION," this young lady seems to be saying as she contemplates a sitz bath at the outdoor New York Flea Market.

Who says you can't fight city hall?

DUARTE, Calif. (AP) — When Roland Garlinghouse, 20, and his wife Gail moved to the Los Angeles area from Tennessee, they looked for a neighborhood where young son Jeffrey, who is deaf and can't hear approaching traffic, would be safe.

They settled on a three-block street with a dead end in a typical suburban tract where youngsters and pets romp and driveways and streets are alive with flying footballs and tricycles with oversized wheels.

But the street's remote setting in this town of 16,500 persons raised a problem. When hot-rodders saw it as a little-patrolled drag strip, Garlinghouse and some neighbors inquired at City Hall.

He learned the city lacked its own police department and contracted for a sheriff's patrol car. The sheriff sympathized but the patrol car couldn't always be on Deerlane Drive.

Later, while vacationing in New York State, the family spotted a sign: "Caution, Deaf Child in Area." Just the thing for Jeffrey, 3½.

So the father went to the city council's traffic and safety committee, with 18 neighbors' signatures.

"I was completely naive," he said. "I thought it would be just as simple as going in and asking for something."

The petition was denied. Committee members said they feared the sign would give children a false sense of safety, make the city liable for an accident and be ignored anyway.

Next the father made a count of passing cars. He got a city map and marked an X where the sign should go. With the aid of a lawyer he shot off a warning letter to City Hall.

When nothing happened, he went back to the traffic committee.

"I was made to feel a little welcome the first time but the second time I was not welcome at all," he said. "I think there's nothing that annoys bureaucrats more than someone who just won't give up."

After his petition was denied a second time, he offered to put up his own sign on the lawn. City Hall said that would be illegal.

Next he managed private meetings with four of the five city fathers. He got no promises.

Desperate, he went to the mayor, who told him to go to a council meeting. He went in a pessimistic mood.

"I was not feeling too success-oriented when my turn came up," he recalled.

The traffic committee chairman was there "and stated all the thousands of reasons why that sign shouldn't go up."

But then fate smiled.

"There were three reporters there, and as soon as I told them I'm the parent of a deaf child, they took up their pencils and started to write," Garlinghouse related. "This had a definite visual effect on the members of the council."

The mayor said, "Let's do something for this gentleman."

A councilman said, "I have a 3-year-old too."

Another councilman said the sign cost only $25 and they had spent more than that just talking about it.

"So then they took a vote and it passed," the father said. "Now all I have to do is wait and see if they'll ever put up the sign."

If they don't, he said, he'll complain again.

CONTEST CHAIRMAN—Mrs. Robbie Wilson, has headed up the Nevada County Fair Queen contest for the past 16 years, and she was on hand Wednesday night to supervise the pageant.

Boyleing it down

By LOUISE COOK

NEW YORK (AP) — Remarks a fisherman gets tired of hearing:

"That one's so little you'll surely throw it back, won't you?"

"I don't think you and your friends actually do any fishing at all. I think you just stay up late and play poker and drink."

"I think you'd be glad to have your wife come along. After all, when the fish aren't biting, you'd have me to talk to."

"If you catch anything, and I'll admit that's highly unlikely, don't bring it home and expect me to cook it. I don't want you getting scales all over the kitchen cleaning it, and I don't want to smell up the whole house with it when I put it on the stove."

"If you buy a new rod and reel, I'm going to buy a new dress and hat."

"You know this is the first time I've ever gone fishing with you, George, so don't get mad at the questions I ask. Just tell me one thing and I won't bother you anymore. Which end of the worm do you put on the hook?"

"The thing I hate about fishing is that it is so unfair. A fish is just a poor dumb little thing that lives with its head under water, while you, George, have had the benefits of a college education."

"It's silly of you to think that I am jealous of your fishing, George. And I don't think you are using it as an excuse to go out with another woman. No woman with any self-respect would be caught dead going out with you dressed in that costume."

"George, I can't help it if I was the one that caught the biggest fish of the day. I wasn't even trying. The silly thing just wouldn't stay off my hook, that's all. When we get back, I'll tell everybody that you were the one who caught it, not me. How will you quit being mad at me?"

"What do you need all that expensive gear for? All I use is an old pole, some string, a hook and some old slices of bacon rind, and I never come home with less than 10 pounds of fish."

waiting for the setting trick long after South has romped home with his contract.

A realistic West will see that king-jack-10 of clubs right in back of his ace-queen and will realize that he must clear the spades before South has a chance to go after clubs. He will play queen and another spade.

South will collect a second spade trick plus three hearts and three diamonds, but if East hangs onto all his diamonds South will not be able to score that all important ninth trick.
